To : Satoshi Jones

Date : October 1, 2014

Subject : Thank you

Dear Satoshi,

This is the first e-mail I've ever written. It's pretty easy — even for a non-tech girl like me! Thank you for coming over yesterday to help me set up my TV set and teaching me how to use the computer. I'm so happy to have such a nice cousin. I am surprised to see that a young primary school student could set up a TV set and teach computer skills. I have much respect for you. Did you have enough time for homework after you got home?

The TV works very well for me. Almost every night, I enjoy watching the sports channel. It is the football season now, and I am a big fan of the Asian Football League. The Bears is my favorite team of all. We hope they will win the final game this season.

By the way, are you free after school next Saturday? As a way of thanking you, I was wondering if you would like me to take you to the zoo that you were talking about yesterday. I got some information about it from the guidebook. The lion bus seems very exciting for me, but there are some nice dog shows that I'd like to see. Maybe you could invite your younger brother, Ken. You two can watch the koalas there, while I am looking at the show. I will buy entrance tickets for all three of us.

Check if it's OK with Ken and your mom and then send me an e-mail. Let me know what time you want me to come to your school and pick you up. I'll need directions to your school. Please send me a map to your school by e-mail.

Yours,

Jennifer

4 次の英文を読み、下記の質問に答えなさい。

Banff is one of the most popular places for enjoying the nature in Canada. Many tourists enjoy the beautiful scenery of mountains and watching the wild animals. They get a lot of tourists not only from in the country, but from all over the world.

It is also home to an unusual couple — a pair of deer named Alex and Jane. For the past 6 years, the two deer have lived near a famous apartment building on Main Street. Many tourists and local people have enjoyed watching them raise their babies and eating food near the park. Their actions are so cute and lovely that lots of people love Alex and Jane.

Some of the people who lived in and near the building where Alex and Jane have lived together, however, were not so pleased about having deer as neighbors. They said that deer were making the sidewalk dirty with their droppings[※] and pieces of food. In December 2014, the residents' association tried to block them from entering, leaving them homeless. This made people unhappy. Deer lovers gathered together in front of the building to show that they were against the decision. Many newspaper articles were written about the deer. It seemed that almost everyone was angry that Alex and Jane had been made to leave their home. Some of the city's most famous citizens joined in the fight for the deer.

In the end, the residents of the building agreed that the deer could come back. A fence was set up to guide them to the area to settle down. The city office has arranged[※] custodians to keep the sidewalk clean from deer droppings. Although some animal lovers were worried that the deer would not come back, they finally returned and settled back in their home. Now, people in Banff are hoping that the deer will raise more babies in their house again.
